

REBELS DRIVEN OUT OF COUNTRY

Insurgents Made a Strong Resistance.

WORK OF FIVE HUNDRED AMERICAN TROOPS.

Were Under the Command of Gens. Lawton, Wheaton and Overhine—Rebels Forced to Leave Their Strong Positions, Leaving Fifty Dead and Many Wounded Behind—Heat Was Intense and Many Americans Were Prostrated—Philippine Commissioners Are Working in Harmony—Schurman Has No Intention of Resigning.

Manila, June 10.—[Special]—Five hundred men under Gens. Lawton, Overhine and Wheaton advanced from San Pedro Macata early this morning, driving the rebels out of the country between Bay Lake south of Manila and the Bay of Manila.

The rebels made a stubborn resistance but were finally driven from their strong positions, leaving fifty dead and many wounded behind. Two American officers were killed and twenty-one privates wounded.

The heat was intense and many of the Americans were prostrated.

The American force engaged in the advance consisted of five companies of colored infantry, two battalions each of the Ninth and Twenty-First Infantry, Fourth Cavalry, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Infantry detachment of light and heavy artillery, and the Nevada Cavalry.

As soon as the advance began, the rebel outposts began firing. Several skirmish lines then swept down on the entrenched Filipinos and poured a heavy fire into them. The rebels fought with their usual vigor, but the heavy force scattered them. The American troops then resumed a forward march, resting near Paraque, which was shelled by the monitor Morano and three vessels as soon as the Americans appeared.

The rebels fled immediately after the bombardment began.

Washington, June 10.—"While there is a natural divergence of views on the part of the members of the Philippine commission, as usual in a body composed of five men, specially selected because of their ability to form clear opinions, this divergence is so slight that it constitutes no bar to their working together and working with sufficient harmony to satisfy the president."

This statement is authorized by a high official of the administration, who has read the individual views of the civilian members of the commission submitted to the president.

"The important point upon which the commission is agreed," he continued, "is that there should be no cessation of hostilities. The military operations should continue during the rainy season in order to keep alive the fear among the Filipinos which the successful campaign of the American troops has created."

It is positively denied that President Schurman has forwarded his resignation to the president or contemplates doing so.

AMERICAN SCOUT KILLED.

Band of Twenty-Five Attacked by a Force of Three Hundred.

Manila, June 10.—Twenty-five American soldiers, who were engaged in reconnoitering in the fortified hills in the vicinity of Morong yesterday, were attacked by 300 insurgents. The Americans fought their way home through the enemy and inflicted severe losses on them. The chief scout accompanying the Americans was killed. Five insurgents were captured and taken to Morong.

The enemy is very active. The garrison cavalry and the North Dakota infantry are employed in throwing up intrenchments.

Otis Reports No Battles.

Washington, June 10.—Four dispatches from Maj. Gen. Otis were received at the war department Friday, but in none of these did he refer to the military situation. This is taken to mean that there have been no operations of importance within the last few days.

Spanish Prisoners Are Dying.

Madrid, June 10.—According to advices from Manila, both public and private, two-fifths of the Spanish prisoners in the hands of the Filipinos are dead, and of the survivors more than 100 are sick and starving.

PLAYED THEIR LAST GAME

Fair Sized Crowd Witnessed the Game This Afternoon.

At Athletic Park this afternoon, a fair sized crowd assembled to see the High school baseball team play their last game of the season.

The nine from the state deal and dumb school were their opponents, and they put up a most excellent game.

The different methods adopted by the visitors in making known their signals and otherwise conducting the game, caused much merriment.

BRITISH DENY REPORT

Officials Say the United States Did Not Ask to Arbitrate Transvaal Matter.

London, June 10.—[Special]—A telegram from Johannesburg, Transvaal, says that the situation is most serious. It is not improbable that a crisis in Transvaal will be hastened.

Today a mass meeting of Uitlanders will be held in order to confirm and support the proposals made by the British high commissioners. The prevailing opinion is that England is in a tight fix and cannot retreat and that if Krueger does not recede, war is inevitable. British officials deny that the United States asked to arbitrate the matter.

Ernst, U. S. A.; Lewis M. Haupt, C. E., of Pennsylvania; Prof. Emory R. Johnson of Pennsylvania.

Admiral Walker, who is at the head of the commission, says that he will call the members together at the earliest practicable moment.

Paris in Greater Danger.

London, June 10.—The stranded American liner City of Paris is making more water than ever as the result of the high easterly wind and heavy sea, and it is feared that she has been injured badly thereby. The flooding of the Paris' engine room necessitated the severing of the main steam pipe to prevent an explosion. The sea made the position of the wrecked vessel worse as regards towing her off.

Wheeler to Henderson.

Dubuque, Iowa, June 10.—Col. Henderson has received no intimation of a visit from James S. Sherman of New York and expects none. His mail Friday contained many letters of congratulation, including one from Gen. Joe Wheeler. The Alabama veteran declares that the members on his side of the house will feel a sense of personal gratification in the choice of the republicans for the speakership.

No More American Cardinals.

Rome, June 10.—There is good authority for saying a second American cardinal will not be created at the coming meeting of the consistory. It is definitely announced that Cardinal Gibbons will remain the only American cardinal.

Germany Will Not Interfere.

Berlin, June 10.—In government circles the opinion is expressed that the Transvaal crisis will find a pacific solution. Should hostilities arise between the Boer government and Great Britain, however, Germany will maintain strict neutrality.

Sons of Veterans Adjourn.

Shelbyville, Ind., June 10.—The State Sons of Veterans' encampment closed here Friday evening after electing officers. H. O. P. Cline of Jonesboro was chosen commander. Elwood was then chosen as the next place of meeting.

An Influenza Cure.

I am an expert in influenza, my knowledge being derived corpore vili, for I have had it several times. I can therefore prescribe. You catch it. Having caught it, go to bed; test your temperature. So long as it is above the normal point (generally about two days), take sops, and twice a day a couple of salicin tablets of five grains each. When the temperature becomes normal feed up, still remaining in bed. If there is sore throat, use a gargle. The odds are that there will be no complications. In about five days the influenza disappears, leaving the patient weak as a rag. This weakness has to be met by continuing to feed up, and by taking a tonic, such as quinine, care being taken to avoid all chance of catching a cold.—London Truth.

Admiral Makaroff's Ice-Breaker.

The ice-breaking ship invented by Admiral Makaroff of the Russian navy, lately completed at Newcastle, has been completely successful. It has three screw propellers in the stern, and another screw for ice-breaking at the bow. Apparatus which permits the shifting of 150 tons of water from one end of the ship to the other, and of 100 tons from side to side, enables the navigator to change the life of the vessel at his will. It is said to have "cut through the thick ice of the Finnish Gulf as easily as a hot knife goes through butter." On its way to Kronstadt it went through two and a half feet of ice at a speed of nine knots.

Peppermint Todd.

"Peppermint" Todd, the fusion congressman who represents the One Hundred and Third Michigan district, is so called because he became a millionaire in the manufacture of peppermint extract. He has huge farms on which he raises nothing but mint, and his venture has proved very profitable. As a legislator his chief ambition seems to be to get into "The Record," and for this purpose he interrupts the proceedings more often than any member of the house. "Uncle Joe" Cannon has found a way to abolish the nuisance thus caused, and at the same time accommodate Mr. Todd's ambition. Whenever Todd interrupts "Uncle Joe" the old man turns to him with the air of a father dealing with a troublesome child, and tells him to put it in "The Record." Most of the peppermint congressman's constituents think that all the remarks in "The Record" are delivered on the floor; so Todd is satisfied.

Corner on the Heavenly Kingdom.

Francis Nichols of Minnesota, who has organized a religious sect called Brethren in Christ, says that all the human race, except the 140,000 in his sect, will be eternally lost. The property of the communicants is placed in a common fund, of which Nichols has charge. All funerals of members of the sect must be under his direction, and his traveling expenses are, of course, borne by the mourners. Those who desire to keep "in the kingdom" must abjure all display in dress and all ornaments are forbidden. The members must not have any friends who are not in the kingdom, and this rule is said to be one of the most severe of all on the women. No tie of relationship is recognized, and persons in one's own family must be shunned if they are outside the kingdom.—Rochester Democrat.

His Happiest Hour.

He—Do you remember the night I proposed to you? She—Yes, dear. We sat for an hour and you never opened your mouth. Yes; I remember, dear. Believe me, that was the happiest hour of my life.—Yonkers Statesman.

An Extraordinary Book.

The most costly book in the Royal Library at Stockholm is a Bible. It is said that 160 asses' skins were used for its parchment leaves. There are 309 pages of writing, and each page falls but one inch short of being a yard in length. The covers are solid planks four inches thick.

PLAN FOR BIG TIME

A. O. U. W. Members and Friends Will Picnic at Portage June 21st

Members of the local A. O. U. W. lodge are planning to attend the state picnic to be held at Portage, Wis., Wednesday, June 21, in full force. The affair promises to be one of the most elaborate in the history of picnics. An attractive program has been arranged and chief among the good features will be a game of ball between the Milwaukee and Minneapolis base ball teams, both members of the Western league. Admission to everything will be free and the city of Portage will be wide open, so to speak, to all visitors for the day. A splendid opportunity for any person to pass an enjoyable day at small expense is offered on this occasion. Trains leave over the C. M. & St. P. Ry., and tickets for the round trip will be only $1.50.

Six Perish in the Snow.

Vancouver, B. C., June 10.—Hay mountain, the scene of the death of twelve unfortunates who tried to make the Klondike by the Edmonton route, has yet further horrors to disclose. Of another party of nine three only are left. The three survivors kept close to the Indian guides, the others lagged behind, and one night the wind obliterated the trail, and when the Indians went back to look for them they were buried in the snow.

Newark Some Days Overdue.

Washington, June 10.—The navy department is looking for news of the United States steamship Newark. The cruiser sailed from Montevideo, Uruguay, the 17th of last month, bound for Valparaiso, Chile, and is now some days overdue. Secretary Long positively declared he had no doubt of the safety of the ship, though it was possible she had been delayed through some untoward conditions.

Hunting Below Zero in Summer.

When the Peary relief steamer Hope goes on its annual trip to the far north it will take a party of six hunters, who will visit the arctic wilderness in search of polar bears and walrus, or what other game may be found among the icebergs and on the frigid mainland. This hunting trip is said to be the first expedition of its kind ever attempted, and its success may open a new field of diversion to such persons as have time and money to spare and love strange adventure and rare hunting.

The President's Characteristic Reply.

Not long ago President McKinley was addressing a great audience in Philadelphia. At the close of the affair the people were closely crowded about the entrance, held back by the police until after the president should have left. Some one, mindful of the president's convenience, suggested that he leave by a rear door. "No, I will leave by the front door. I never retrace my steps," was the characteristic reply of the president.

LIEUT. J. B. WHITING HOME

Returns to Janesville After Long Term As An Army Surgeon

Lieutenant Joseph B. Whiting, Jr., returned home last evening after serving as an army surgeon since the beginning of the war. His last duty was at Savannah where he mustered out the signal corps battalion of which he had been the medical officer for some months past. His resignation was at that time in the hands of the surgeon general and at the conclusion of the work of mustering out, Lieut. Whiting was ordered to report in person to that official. Later his resignation was accepted, and he at once left Washington for home. After a short vacation, Lieut. Whiting will resume his practice in Janesville. His many friends will be pleased to know that he will remain here.

While in the service Lieut. Whiting had unexcelled opportunities for study, observation and practice, both in the lines of medicine and surgery, and as he returns from tropical Cuba in the best of health the experience has been both instructive and beneficial from both a professional and personal point of view. An order had been issued assigning him to duty in the Philippines, but as he had served on the scout salary of a lieutenant since the beginning of the war, Lieut. Whiting did not feel that further sacrifices on his part were necessary, especially now that the worst of the Philippine trouble appears to have passed. Hence, he declined the offer for the present, at least.

Men Get Shorter on Mountains.

A singular result of the recent experiments of Prof. Angelo Mosso on the physiological effects of high altitudes is that a mountain ascent may produce such a flattening of the lumbar curve that a man may be an inch and a half shorter on the summit of Monte Rosa than when he is in the valleys beneath. The height of Monte Rosa, the second loftiest peak of the Alps, is 15,215 feet. The cause of the shortening is partly the exertion of climbing. The human stature always diminishes slightly during the day.

A Sure Effacement.

For Young Girls.

A young girl should refer a young man who invites her to accompany him anywhere to her mother, who is the best judge of what should be done. A girl who acts on her mother's advice cannot be blamed for anything she does.

GREAT OVATION FOR JEFFRIES

Says He Never Felt Better In His Life.

COULD RE-ENTER RING AND FIGHT BATTLE OVER AGAIN.

World's Champion Arrived At the Vanderbilt Hotel in New York City This Morning—Refused to Drink Anything With His Admirers and Retired to Bed—California Pugilist Defeats the Veteran Fitzsimmons in Eleven Rounds—Western Man Displays Wonderful Skill and Agility Combined With Tremendous Hitting Powers.

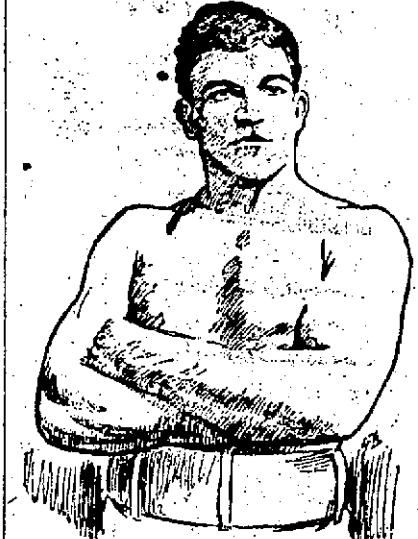

New York, June 10.—[Special]—James Jeffries, who has won the honors of being the world champion prize-fighter, arrived at the Vanderbilt hotel early this morning.

He received a great ovation, but declined to drink anything with the crowd and went to bed.

Before retiring, he declared that he never felt better in his life and that he could re-enter the ring at that moment and fight the battle all over again.

Jeffries slept until ten o'clock, and then greeted the crowd of friends who had gathered at the hotel.

Later, he sent the following message to Lorraine Belmont, his sweetheart, at Indianapolis: "Thanks for your faith and interest in the fight. It was mine from the beginning, as you predicted."

Fitz Feels a Little Sore.

New York, June 10.—[Special]—Fitzsimmons rose about ten o'clock and said that he felt a little sore about the hips, but not about the fight.

He told the reporters who gathered around his quarters that he was fairly whipped and hoped that Jeffries will know enough to quit the ring before somebody gets the best of him.

Mrs. Fitzsimmons is constantly near her husband, offering him words of consolation.

Fitzsimmons was out-weighted and out-matched. Jeffries showed that while in physique he is the biggest and heaviest pugilist in the world today, he is one of the cleverest and one of the fastest. Fitzsimmons could get to his man as often as he liked, and when he did his great punches had little or no effect. He landed on the jaw repeatedly, but failed to make the big fellow rock, and his famous solar-plexus blow was nothing when it landed.

Jeffries showed wonderful speed with his left hand. It was with this glove that he did most damage, until in the eleventh round he had Fitz going with it, and then put the right hand across. The last blow was the first that Jeff tried with this hand, and it did the trick. It landed flush upon the point of the jaw and knocked Fitzsimmons insensible to the floor.

Fitzsimmons showed beyond a doubt that he is one of the pluckiest fighters that ever got into a ring. Though overmatched and hopelessly beaten in the tenth round, he refused to sit down in his corner during the minute rest, and came out for the last and fatal round ready to take his medicine, which he must have known was coming to him.

ANNUAL ALUMNI RECEPTION

Event Last Evening Was a Social and Literary Success.

What proved to be a great social and literary success was the reception given by the High school alumni at East Side Odd Fellows' hall last evening, in honor of the graduating class of '99. The preparations for the affair were carried out successfully in every detail and the evening passed by those present in one that will never be forgotten. The hall was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, fragrant potted plants and the class colors, orange and black and in fact was a picture of beauty. Victor P. Richardson, president of the Alumni association, delivered the address of welcome, which was listened to in rapt attention. Ray Owen, president of the class, responded in a few well chosen words. Toasts were responded to in a pleasing manner by Misses Julia Welsh, of Chicago, Abbie Atwood and Katherine Wiggins, of this city, and E. Ray Stevens, of Madison. Miss Lucy Akin read "Bill and Joe." The musical numbers included a piano solo, "Butterflies," by Mrs. M. O. Mount, and a vocal solo, "Spring Song," by Miss Mary Wilcox, with piano and violin accompaniment by Mrs. W. T. Sherer and Ed. Hayward. Both ladies responded to encores. The program concluded with the class song, after which ice cream and cake was served by twenty-four Juniors. In the hall upstairs dancers made merry to the inspiring music of the orchestra from the State School for the Blind.

The following young people waited on the table in a faultless manner:

LAST ATTRACTION OF PRESENT SEASON

ROLAND REED AT MYERS GRAND WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

The Noted Actor Who Will Amuse Janesville People Tells Something About His Stage Methods to Produce Laughter—He's a Favorite With Local Theatre Goers.

Roland Reed, who has been touring the Pacific coast and who comes to Janesville Wednesday evening to present the laughable comedy "The Wrong Mr. Wright," recently gave to the press the following interesting statement of the stage methods by which he has won an enviable reputation as a comedian:

"How do I make people laugh? I don't know. I have been at the business for a long time and I never stopped to inquire how it is done. I presume there is something in my composition which does the work, but I do not know what it is. It is the same way with most people who follow any particular calling and who have attained success in that calling. With this man it is the power to be a success in one line, with another man it is a qualification to be successful in another. I think the qualification was planted in me origin-kind of stock in trade. The comedian must keep abreast of the times in wit, humor and plays. I shall not say whether I keep this idea in view. If I did not I certainly would be devoid of common sense. However, I prefer to let the people pass on that subject and I am satisfied with their verdict.

Does it tire me? Well, I can not say that it does. Every man has to work. When a man is doing absolutely nothing, from my way of thinking, he is working the hardest. In trying to make people laugh I do not get tired. If I can make them laugh at all I do it without effort. The work is not in making people laugh. It is in the effort which is sometimes made which is not rewarded with a return. Happily, such a return is not of frequent occurrence. Why that is so I will not say. I am of a mercurial temperament. I can go into a room with other people and tell whether or not I am wanted there. I can tell in the theatre at the outset, whether or not an audience is with me. I work hard and if it is not with me I work a great deal harder. At the same time it does not tire me. In some way or other the people laugh. Sometimes I wonder why they do it, but so long as they are satisfied I have no reason to be otherwise than pleased. That is the way I feel about audiences in general."

The audience at Myers' Grand next Wednesday evening will not require a surgical operation to see the jokes.

LAST MEETING OF THE SEASON

Vermont Statue to Dewey.

All Vermonters are proud of Admiral Dewey, who is a native of the "Green Mountain" state, and a number of them who have moved to other parts of the United States propose to present a statue of the hero of Manila to Vermont. The statue will be on the right of the porch leading to the state capitol at Montpelier, and will commemorate Dewey's victory in Manila bay. At the left of the porch is a statue of Ethan Allen, the great Vermont Revolutionary patriot, who served with distinction in the continental army, and who was some time imprisoned in England for taking up arms in the revolution against the English government. Among noted living Americans who are natives of Vermont are Levi P. Morton, ex-vice-president of the United States; Senator John M. Thurston of Nebraska; Congressman Joseph W. Babcock of Wisconsin; Everett C. Benton of Massachusetts; and Wallace F. Robinson, president of the Boston chamber of commerce.

Indigestion in Babies.

A great many mothers have the habit of taking their babies to the table, and allowing them to eat a little of anything and everything they can find. This is a pernicious habit and breeds a great deal of trouble. Solid food is improperly masticated in the mouth and improperly digested after swallowing, thus passing as an irritant the whole length of the intestinal tract. Starchy foods are allowed infants at times, and we know these must be changed to sugar before being absorbed, and in the child this change will not take place until about the sixth month of life. The undigested starchy food ferments easily and becomes a severe irritant.

When the Horse Was Not a Horse.

In the American Museum of Natural History is a famous skeleton of an extinct animal called the "phenacodus," discovered in Wyoming, and believed by geologists to represent the earliest form of the horse. This skeleton belonged to the late Prof. Cope's collection. It has now been remounted in much more perfect form than before. The animal was about as large as a sheep, rather slender, with a long tail and five toes on each foot; but three of the toes did nearly all the work. It lived in Eocene times; that is to say, in the age of the dawn.

Emperor William as a Robber. Emperor William never plays cards except for very low stakes. Yet in a game with a Leipzig lawyer, once upon a time, the latter lost 20 marks. He laughingly exclaimed: "I have got into a regular robbers' den." Everybody roared with laughter. The emperor as heartily as the rest. When his majesty was staying the following year at Barby, and noticed the lawyer, he went up to him, handed him a 20-mark piece set in diamonds, in the form of a scarfpin, and said: "Restored by the robbers."

Lipton and Gordon College.

Early on his arrival in London, Lord Kitchener paid a visit to Sir Thomas Lipton, and the proposed Gordon college at Khartoum was mentioned. Sir Thomas Lipton paused for a moment, and said: "Either I shall give all the money or I shall give a small subscription." But before Sir Thomas could do either the matter was taken up by the public, and the general response was so hearty that the second alternative alone was left to Sir Thomas. However, his "small subscription" was a matter of $2,500.

Honest Folks in Finland.

There is less crime in Finland than in any other country in Europe except Iceland. Honesty is the national virtue. Bolts and bars are not deemed necessary fixtures for a house, even in the country, where the people spend much of their time in the fields, and in the large towns people leave baggage and other personal property in the street for hours unguarded, without fear that it will be molested.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

Unparalleled Rise in Prices During the Last Week.

THE BOOM IS NOT WELCOMED.

R. G. Dun & Co., in Their Report, Note the Advance as an Element of Danger.—Western Receipts of Wheat Disprove Crop Damage Rumors.

New York, June 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"The last week has brought a rise in prices not equaled in any other week of many years. It is needless to say that this is a symptom of danger, and the most conservative manufacturers, especially in iron and steel, have striven to avoid it, but actual inability to deliver products demanded leaves them little power, while speculation in wool and other lines is running away from consumption. It is a saving feature that quotations are quite largely fictitious."

"After some advance wheat suddenly declined 2 cents, closing lower for the week. Against all accounts of injury is the solid fact that western receipts were 5,049,194 bushels for the week, against 1,477,045 from the great crop of last year. Corn has shown unusual independence, scarcely changing in price, with exports 2,804,900 bushels, against 4,194,641 last year.

RAINS CAUSE A BAD WRECK.

Forty-Five Persons Hurt on the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Road.

Kansas City, June 10.—Between forty-five and fifty passengers were more or less seriously injured, three perhaps fatally, by the derailment of train No. 4, south bound, on the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf railroad three miles south of Granview, Mo., at 9:30 o'clock Thursday night. The disaster was caused by spreading rails. The train was running at a slow rate of speed on account of bad condition of the track, occasioned by heavy rains. The injured were brought to this city.

Fails to Capture Bandits.

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 10.—General Manager Ed Dickinson and Superintendent Harris of the Union Pacific have returned from Casper, where they had been directing the chase for the three men who dynamited and robbed the Union Pacific express train. Dickinson stated that the robbers are still at large, but that every possible effort to effect their capture is being made.

"Uncle Dick" Thompson is 90.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 10.—The 90th birthday of Richard W. Thompson, ex-secretary of the navy, was celebrated Friday by a banquet given by the Thompson club, a republican organization. "Uncle Dick" is in fairly good health and spoke with something of the vigor which in the campaign of 1840 gave him the name of "Silver-Tongued Dick."

Table Glass in a Trust.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 10.—Glass tableware manufacturers of the country have finally taken decisive steps toward forming a combination. An application has been filed for a charter under the laws of Pennsylvania, and the new venture will be pushed as fast as possible. The capital stock will be $8,000,000 or $9,000,000.

Michigan Wheat Very Poor.

Lansing, Mich., June 10.—Secretary of State Stearns reports that wheat in Michigan has not been in as poor condition as it is to-day in many years. The crop has steadily declined since last fall, all conditions having been against its progress, and now the estimate for the state is but 45 per cent of an average crop.

Miles Wants to See Fighting.

New York, June 10.—A special dispatch from Washington to the Mail and Express says: "Major-Gen. Miles has asked the president to be sent to the Philippines. No decision has been reached in the matter. Gen. Miles does not expect to supersede Gen. Otis."

Quarantine Is Raised.

New Orleans, La., June 10.—As the result of an investigation by Dr. Blount, health officer of Texas, that state has raised the passenger and freight quarantine which was placed against New Orleans because of a reported case of yellow fever.

Woodmen Select St. Paul.

Kansas City, Mo., June 10.—The head camp of the Modern Woodmen of America selected St. Paul as the place of meeting in 1901. The vote was 199 to 163 for Grand Rapids, the only other candidate.

Allison Is Not a Candidate.

New York, June 10.—Senator William B. Allison gives an emphatic denial to the report that he proposed to enter the republican national convention next year as a candidate against President McKinley.

Ross Hollow Disaster Denied.

Little Rock, Ark., June 10.—The report that twenty-eight men were killed at Ross Hollow on the Choctaw road Thursday afternoon is denied by the contractors.

Dreyfus on His Way.

Cayenne, French Guiana, June 10.—The second-class cruiser Sfax, having on board Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, left Friday for Brest, France.

L. B. Carle of This City Makes Large Tobacco Sale

That the trade is well disposed towards the '98 crop finds evidence in quite a revival of business both from first hands and among packers, says The Wisconsin Leaf Tobacco Reporter. Soverhill & Porter have picked up about 3000s from growers of late at prices that do not exceed those paid earlier in the season, when shrinkage and cost of handling are deducted. We learn that other dealers are quietly picking away at the remnants remaining in the country. Some large deals among '98 packers have taken place especially in Vernon county leaf where we are informed that 16000s of M. H. Bekkedal's packing at Soldier's Grove has been sold to C. F. Tallard. Fred Eckhart has also purchased the Helgeson packing at Viroqua, nearly 10000s, and S. N. Neprud at Westby has sold 1500s '97 fillers to the Bamberger firm. A deal of greater magnitude is also under consideration in that locality. L. B. Carle of Janesville also sold 7000s of low grade goods to Bamberger. C. L. Culton has disposed of several good sized lots during the week.

West Porter

West Porter, June 9.—A large number from Porter attended the M. W. A. picnic at Beloit last week. Several of the boys went on their bicycles. A pleasant time seems to be the sentiment of all. The Porter Cornet band accompanied the Evansville M. W. A. Camp. They rendered some excellent music at every station on the way besides the playing they did at Beloit. F. W. Tolles was the guest of his brother, W. M. Tolles, over Sunday. A few from Porter attended the Seminary commencement exercises last Thursday. George Morrison has been working in this vicinity the past few days. W. M. Tolles transacted business in Madison Monday, and in Janesville Tuesday. Miss Nora Lamb, of Brooklyn, is visiting relatives here. Miss Lottie Griffith is sick with the measles. Jessie Earle of Janesville, spent Saturday and Sunday at home. School closes in the Wilder district next Friday. Invitations are out for a dancing party to be held at the Porter band hall, Thursday evening, June 15. Music by Tuckwood's orchestra of Janesville.

A Cold Storage Advantage

Our big cold storage in the stone basement will hold a carload of goods. During the summer all our dried fruits, smoked meats, surplus stock of fruit and vegetables are kept at an even cool temperature in this mammoth box. Beside being fresh, the stock is away from flies, insects and dust. There is an advantage in trading at a store with these conveniences. It costs no more and in many cases much less and the service is certainly worth considering. Sanborn.

A NEW INDUSTRY.

Tasting Dinners for a Living Is the Latest Thing in London.

The "dinner taster" is the latest example of the highest type of London refinement. The London palate is the one thing worth living for, according to the idea of a certain class of people whose pleasure in life depends upon the enjoyment of the senses. The "dinner taster" makes it her business to visit the fine houses and taste the dishes intended for dinner. She suggests improvements, and shows the cook new ways of preparing dishes. That the business is a profitable one may be judged from the fact that she invariably rides in a cab. In the east end of London a lucrative trade is followed by some score or so of women. The pawnbrokers there are very numerous and never lack for clients. Among the latter, however, are some who do not relish the idea of being brought into personal contact with "uncle." It is for the special benefit of these that the pawnbroker's agent exists. She goes several times a day to the pawnbroker with articles belonging to the bashful ones, for whom she gets the highest sums procurable on the items pledged. For her services she receives a percentage on the amount obtained. Another enterprising London woman has hit on a capital although probably painful business. She earns a profitable living by "breaking in" boots for the leaders of society. She wears them for a few days until they become easy and comfortable to their owners.

Simplicity of a Novelist's Life.

Jokai, the Hungarian novelist, lives in extreme simplicity. He is seldom seen away from home and begins work at his desk in the early morning, sometimes remaining there the whole day. A small room adjoining his library contains the books of reference he consults, a narrow bed like a soldier's, and a few window plants. The room is so destitute of what is generally looked upon as necessary comforts that it might be the dormitory of a monk. Dr. Jokai, now in his seventy-fifth year, is constantly attended by a devoted man-servant, who has grown aged in his beloved master's service.

Is a Born Doctor.

The seventh son of a seventh son is a born doctor, according to Irish belief, but he must never take money for the cures he achieves, and to insure recovery he should be sought before sunrise or after sunset on Friday.

Maybe the grocer is "just out of Ivory Soap but has another, he thinks, is just as good." No other soap is just as good. Insist that he get Ivory Soap for you.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory," they are not, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

The Oldest Hotel in Europe.

The Goldenes Kreuz (Golden Cross) at Regensburg (Ratisbon), in Bavaria, is the oldest hotel in Europe. King Ferdinand I halted at it on his way to his coronation in 1531, and no other hotel in Europe possesses records of such great antiquity as the Golden Cross at Ratisbon does or can boast of having had so many royal visitors as have enjoyed its hospitality. The existing visitors' books, which date from 1819, contain the names of more than 500 imperial, royal and princely personages.

The room is shown where, in 1865, the late Prince Bismarck, at that time Prussian minister, slept when he came with his sovereign to hold the conference which was the last attempt to prevent war between Austria and Prussia. The negotiations were held in the "small hall" of the hotel, under the presidency of King William of Prussia.

The host is equally proud of the autographs of Schiller and other men of letters which he possesses. The author of "William Tell" wrote the words, "Und eine Heimath ist es" ("It is indeed a home"), in memory of his stay there, and no landlord could wish for a better advertisement.

WOMEN EMPLOYES BARRED.

A Chicago Street Railway Says No More Need Apply.

From the Chicago Chronicle: The Metropolitan West Side Elevated Railroad company is the latest corporation to discriminate against women employees. The women now employed as ticket sellers will not be discharged so long as efficient, so the report goes, but men only will be appointed to fill vacancies as they occur. Since the recent action of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad company in discriminating against women employees was made public it is claimed there has been a tendency among other large corporations to follow in the same line. The principal reason advanced by the Northwestern company for its change of policy was that women were unsuited for promotion to the higher railroad positions, and that its civil service policy could be carried out successfully only with exclusively male employees. The Union Loop and Lake Street "L" companies some time ago discarded women ticket sellers "for the good of the service." It is said the ticket offices of the Northwestern "L" road, now nearing completion, will be filled exclusively with men. As the company is the largest employer of labor of any of the "L" roads, its ban on female labor is creating more agitation in labor circles than any discriminating order of recent date.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

1652—The first mint in America began to coin. Colonial coinage began in Massachusetts. The first coins were of three denominations—12 pence, 6 pence and 3 pence. The inscription on one side was N. E. and on the other was a tree in the center. The words "New England" on the reverse, with the date of the year. Although several other colonies passed coinage acts, nothing came of them until after the Declaration of Independence, when the Confederacy and the separate states minted coins of small denominations.

1672—Peter, the Great of Russia born near Moscow, died Feb. 8, 1725.

1801—The United States entered on a war with Tripoli.

1830—Matthew Shinn, distinguished Methodist clergyman and bishop, born in Ohio; died 1884.

1854—Louis Green, the last slave sold on New Haven green, died in New Haven; born 1799.

1898—Colonel W. H. Huntington landed a force of 600 marines at Guantanamo bay and hoisted the stars and stripes on Cuban soil.

SOLDIERS WELL FED.

Uncle Sam's soldiers are well provided for by the commissary department these days. Among the reports which accompanied the report of General Otis regarding operations about Manila are those relating to the subsistence of the army. It appears from these that the subsistence corps was prompt in every way in supplying the troops with food. Under date of March 29, Major Robert H. Fitzhugh, chief commissary of the Second division, says:

"On the evening of Feb. 5, after hard fighting and a general advance all along the division line, the troops were given their supper promptly at the regular hour, and during all the subsequent movements, while the troops have been constantly confronting the enemy, either in line or in the trenches, the continuous supply of rations has been maintained without a break and at all times a reserve of at least two days of travel ration has been kept on hand. With the exception of two days when travel rations were issued the issue has been as follows:

"Fresh beef, seven days in tin, 1 pound; salmon, one day in tin, 1 pound; fresh bread daily, 1 pound 2 ounces; potatoes, daily, (80 per cent), 12 1/2-5 ounces; onions, (20 per cent), 3 1/2 ounces, or potatoes (75 per cent), onions (15 per cent); canned tomatoes, 10 per cent; coffee, 1 1/2-25 ounces; sugar, 2-2 1/2 ounces. Vinegar, salt and pepper in authorized proportions, to which was added on days of fresh beef issue the option of 4 ounces more of fresh beef or 2 ounces each of rice, dried fruits and (when on hand) oatmeal.

"To the above were added canned corned beef, ham, canned milk and cream, fruits, preserves and a long list of delicacies sold by the subsistence department at cost, which were purchased by each organization with proceeds from savings of subsistence stores.

"The most noticeable features of the supply are the deliveries of fresh beef from Australia and the United States, which would be called excellent in any United States market, is delivered on the line, frozen, before 8 a. m., and officers and men assure me that it is perfectly good on the day following their receipt of it, although generally used as soon as received. Men in the trenches receive the kind of meals usually given in quarters.

"The rations have been delivered according to location, by canoe, cart and rail, and due credit should be given for the great efficiency of the transportation. I have heard of but one case of the loss of a meal."

The site for new postoffice in Freeport will be condemned by the government. The treasury officials have decided that the Jacob Klein corner, opposite the present postoffice, is the most desirable location, but the price he puts on it is considered too high. He wants $26,000 for the property, but real estate men have told the government officials that $16,000 would be a fair price for it. Hence condemnation proceedings have been ordered.

The gun now being built at the Watervliet Arsenal, which will be mounted at the Sandy Hook defenses after its testfirings in September, will be the largest service gun in the world, and will have a muzzle energy equivalent to the ramming power of the battleship Oregon going at a fourteen knot speed. The steel ingot from which the main tube was constructed weighed 111.15 tons.

It is now said that Cuban disturbers propose to start a campaign of incendiarism, and divest the island of buildings. It is more likely, however, that our Uncle Samuel will have the country divested of fire bugs before the torch is fairly started on its rounds.

More troops will be sent to the Philippines at once, and all who desire to enlist can do so. The recruiting station nearest this city is at Milwaukee. Captain C. W. Penrose is in command, and his office is at 445 East Water street.

A detective employed by colored people of Chicago to investigate the lynching of Sam Hose at Newman, Ga., reports that the burning was premeditated and was actually advertised by a railroad company.

And now that Generals Fitzsimmons and Jeffries have had their argument, let us again turn to the war in the Philippines.

Of course you knew how the battle would come out.

ORANG OUTANG.

That Wears Clothes and Drinks Beer Like a Man.

"Hello, Mike, d'you want some ale?" asked the third officer of the British steamer Merionethshire, which arrived in New York recently from Java. The words were spoken to what appeared to be a little man with an enormous paunch, dressed in a brown suit of clothes, and with a cap on his head, who was sitting in a commodious cage. "Ugh, ugh!" came the answer, as Mike pulled off his cap, revealing a pair of umbrella-like ears standing at right angles from his head. Then again donning his cap, Mike took a cup from the shelf and thrust it out to his master. The officer poured in some beer, and Mike quaffed it slowly, puckered up his lips and nose, and then wiped his mouth with his coat sleeve. The officer said that he had secured the orang outang in Java, together with its mate. The two simians learned tricks very easily, but the female caught cold and died during the voyage. Then the ship's tailor made a suit for the male, and the animal almost immediately took a fancy to the clothes. He made great friends with the sailors, but had a bad habit of climbing upon their shoulders and seating himself there like Simba's old man of the sea. No sailor could work with Mike clinging to him in that fashion, and so the ship's carpenter made a cage for him.

TABAKS KOLLEGIUM.

Belgian Bruges Possesses a Rival to Friedrich Wilhelm's Club.

Quaint old Bruges, immortalized by Longfellow, possesses one of the queerest institutions extant. It is nothing other than a modern imitation of the Tabaks Kollegium, famous throughout the history-reading world. The Prussian Smoking College, as originally initiated by the stout old king, was rather for serious business than mere pleasure, matters of grave importance to church and state being discussed between the long, solemn puffs. Brugsche Rokersclub, on the contrary, is continued for the sake of sport. A smoking contest is carried on each evening, not, as might be supposed, to see who can smoke the most tobacco in the least time, but who can smoke the least tobacco in the most time. At the signal to begin, attendants light simultaneously the pipes of all the contestants, who are seated around a great table. Each man smokes a common kind of pipe, filled with exactly two and a half grammes of the finest tobacco. A referee watches carefully to see that no one allows his fire to die down, the rule being that a spark must be kept constantly burning. Each man drops out as his pipeful is consumed, while the two who remain the longest share the money in portions of two and three fifths, the winner taking the larger portion. Many members of the Rokersclub have become expert at the game, puffing constantly away at one pipeful for as long as two hours. The club is a very exclusive affair, the heavy dues keeping out all but the upper class.

COLORS OF WILD ANIMALS.

Normal Hue of Wild Cattle and Buffalo—A Beautiful Species.

In wild quadrupeds the natural variation of coloring seems generally limited to three hues. The normal and usual tint seems fixed, as in the case of the lion, leopard, rabbit or fallow deer. Concurrently with this there are two variations, always liable to occur—melanism, or the tendency to develop darker color, and in extreme cases black; and albinism, of partial or total whiteness. Fallow deer, a species of both wild and domesticated, show this perhaps best of all quadrupeds, for the black, white, and normal breeds are to be seen in most parks in England. These three shades, black, white and tawny or sandy, may be taken to be the normal coloring of quadrupeds. It remains to be shown how from these three not only many other tints have been developed, but also many colors far more brilliant and rich in tone than the "sandy" or normal hue. If, as we believe, it is on the subsequent "mixture" of these three hues that all the variety of subsequent coloring in domesticated species depends, we must find a wild ox or buffalo which is sandy, or tawny, for experiments in crossing these and tame bovidae show that so many of the hybrids are fertile that we cannot draw hard and fast line between them. Though black is the normal color of nearly all the wild cattle and buffaloes, there is one species which is tawny. This is the small, short-horned buffalo of the west coast of Africa. Though confined now to that region, the existence of one wild breed of this color is presumptive evidence that there may have been others elsewhere. It is a very beautiful species, fawn-colored, with a tinge of dark chestnut, and about the size of a Jersey bull. The ears are long and tipped with a long tuft of hair, the eyes large, and the coat as smooth as that of an English cow in summer. Given the tawny and the black wild cattle, the white variety is almost certain to appear occasionally either as a pure albino or as a black beast spotted with white.—Spectator.

CANCER IS DEADLY!

Results Fatally in Nine

Cases Out of Ten—A

Cure Found at Last.

This fearful disease often first appears as a mere scratch, a pimple, or lump in the breast, too small to attract any notice, until, in many cases, the deadly disease is fully developed.

Cancer can not be cured by a surgical operation, because the disease is a virulent poison in the blood, circulating throughout the system, and although the sore or ulcer—known as the Cancer—may be cut away, the poison remains in the blood, and promptly breaks out afresh, with renewed violence.

The wonderful success of S. S. S. in curing obstinate, deep-seated blood diseases which were considered incurable, induced a few despairing sufferers to try it for Cancer, after exhausting the skill of the physicians without a cure. Much to their delight S. S. S. proved equal to the disease and promptly effected a cure. The glad news beyond doubt that a cure had at last been found for deadly Cancer. Evidence has accumulated which is incontrovertible, of which the following is a specimen:

"Cancer is hereditary in our family, my father, a sister and an aunt having died from this dreadful disease. My feelings may be imagined when the horrible disease made its appearance on my side. It was a malignant Cancer, eating inwardly in such a way as to cause great alarm. The disease seemed beyond the skill of the doctors, for their treatment did no good whatever, the Cancer growing worse all the while. Numerous remedies were used for it, but the Cancer grew steadily worse, until it seemed that I was doomed to follow the others of the family, for I knew how deadly Cancer is, especially when inherited. I was advised to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), which, from the first day, forced out the poison. I continued its use until I had taken eighteen bottles, when I was cured sound and well, and have had no symptoms of the dreadful affliction, though many years have elapsed. S. S. S. is the only cure for Cancer.—Mrs. S. M. Idol, Winston, N. C.

The saying is an old one but nevertheless a true one, "the best is always the cheapest." It has been proven true in Bicycles to a very great extent. People who bought "cheap" wheels last season and the year before are investing in good wheels this year. Too much expense in repairs, too hard running, in fact entirely worn out.

JUDGE J. R. BENNETT CALLED BY DEATH

END CAME AT HIS HOME LAST EVENING.

Suffered a Stroke of Apoplexy At Five O'clock and Died At 6:40—Was Seventy-Nine Years Old, and Had Been a Judge For Seventeen Years.

Judge John R. Bennett's long, eventful and useful life came peacefully to a close at 6:40 o'clock last evening, at his home, 201 Milton avenue.

A stroke of apoplexy was the cause of his demise. Dr. Q. O. Sutherland was called, but could do nothing for the patient, and death occurred an hour and forty minutes after the first attack.

Judge Bennett had been suffering from indigestion for some days past, and had not been in robust health for some time previous to these attacks. He had failed rapidly during the past few weeks.

His two daughters, Misses Minnie and Kattie were with him when the end came. The Rock County Biographical History gives the following sketch of Judge Bennett's life:

Born in 1820. Judge John R. Bennett was born in Rodman, Jefferson county, New York, November 1st, 1820, and was therefore in the seventy-ninth year of his age when his life's labors were finished. His parents, Daniel and Deborah (Leeds) Spicer, Bennett were descended from English Puritan ancestors who settled in Connecticut about the year 1668.

Judge Bennett was reared to manhood upon his father's farm and received his early education in the common schools. In the fall of 1839 he became a student of the Black River Literary and Religious institute of Watertown, New York, where he fitted himself for the profession of teaching in which he engaged at intervals until April, 1844, in connection with his attendance at the institute. At the latter date he entered upon a course of law studies under the preceptorship of W. W. Wager, of Brownville, Jefferson county, New York, which he continued for a period of six months.

Admitted to the bar. In April, 1845, he commenced reading law in the office of Dyre N. Burnham of Sackett's Harbor, New York, and pursued his studies with that gentleman until May 8, 1848, when he was admitted to practice in the courts of that state. On October 2, 1848, he started for the west to seek a broader field for the exercise of his talents and on October 13, reached this city, where he established himself in business. On coming to Janesville Mr. Bennett from the beginning took a foremost place at the bar of Rock county. He was associated with Judge Charles R. Gibbs, now of Whitewater; the late J. C. Sloan, Captain Piny Norcross, Judge John W. Sale, the late Charles Jordan, and others.

Helped nominate Lincoln. In 1860 he had the honor of being a delegate to the national republican convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln for the presidency. He was elected district attorney of Rock county in 1863, was re-elected and served until 1867, and without being a candidate was nominated by the republican state convention of 1875 for the office of attorney general of Wisconsin, but was defeated with the rest of the ticket with the exception of the candidate for governor, Harrison Luddington, who was elected by a small majority.

Mr. Bennett was elected to the bench of the twelfth judicial circuit in April, 1882, by a large majority, being the almost unanimous choice of the bar, which position he filled with credit to himself until the day of his death. He was re-elected in 1888, in 1892 and 1896 and his last term would have expired December 31, 1900.

Married in 1844. November 28th, 1844, at Hounsfield, Jefferson county, New York, he was married to Miss Elsie L. Holloway, whose sweet and gentle influence ever tended to lead him in the pleasant paths of life. The purity of her life, the wisdom of her counsel and the comfort of her society were sources of his greatest happiness. Mrs. Bennett died May 28th, 1893.

Judge Bennett was a familiar figure in Janesville. He was modest, and unassuming in manner, possessing quick sensibilities, but with perfect self command. Rigid and firm in his sense of duty he yet had a deep, tender and sympathetic nature and knew how to temper justice with mercy. As a lawyer he was ever noted for his uniform courtesy to his brethren of the bar, and for respect to the court, as well as for his wisdom in counsel and force as an advocate. As a judge he was admired and respected for the fairness of his rulings, the impartiality and justice of his decisions and the manly dignity of his presence. In his political sentiments he was a consistent republican. Reared under strictly religious influences and possessing deep veneration for the Holy Scriptures, Judge Bennett from early youth gave the subject of spiritual life and the relation of man to his Creator deep thought and earnest consideration. He was a New Churchman or Swedenborgian as the members of that denomination are most frequently called.

Life Was a Busy One. His life was always a busy one, both as a lawyer and a judge. By the strictest integrity and keen sense of professional honor he won and retained the confidence of the people. In addressing court or jury his commanding presence, earnestness and ability always inspired respect and secured attention. He was a staunch friend, and no one ever had a better neighbor. Enclosed with mental facilities of a high order which were trained by extensive reading and systematic study, and gifted with a quaint and pleasant delivery he was entertaining and instructive in discourse, and was a charming conversationalist.

THE USES OF DANDELION.—The homely mustard greens and the tender leaves of the port dandelion are specifically wholesome. It is only necessary to wash them well and put into boiling water, salted, until tender all through. Dress always with butter generously and serve hot. Mustard leaves are preferably boiled with a good piece of fat pork and served round it. The water in which these are boiled is famous as the "pot liquor," for which and a piece of corn bread the old southern dandy would barter his birthright. In the spring season some of its leaves may be boiled with spinach with good effect. It is a delicately acid vegetable and excellent when not too old. It used alone, beat the yolk of an egg and mix into it after boiling and chopping.

He leaves to mourn his loss two adopted daughters, Misses Kattie and Minnie Bennett, a brother, D. D. Bennett, and two sisters, Mrs. James S. McGowan and Mrs. L. L. Williams, all of this city.

Funeral services will be held from the Milton avenue home at 10 o'clock Monday morning, and the interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

LOCAL BOOTBLACKS TOURING EUROPE

DAVERKOSEN AND DULLER THE YOUTHS.

Letters to Janesville Relatives State That They Landed in Liverpool From Boston—Have Already Managed To See London and Paris—Now Returning Home.

Robert Daverkosen and William Duller, two local bootblacks, have been traveling in Europe of late.

In a letter received by local relatives, they stated that they left Boston and worked their way over on a cattle boat, making the trip to Liverpool, England.

The boat, they stated was a slow freighter and its cargo consisted of live stock and freight of all kinds.

The trip over was a most pleasant one with the exception of two days when the sea was very rough.

The boys say the sailors treated them royally and wanted to know all about life in the far west.

In England they spent several days traveling and while enroute managed to see Arthur Windish of this city, who is now touring that country with the Barnum & Bailey circus.

In London, the local youths spent several days and from the great metropolis made their way across the English channel into France.

From England they went to Paris, where they spent several days. In speaking of life in "Gay Paris" one of the boys said that it was just "too nice for anything" and that it was not for the dear folks at home they would learn to talk French and stay until the fair of 1900.

Their letter states that they left Janesville without money, but that in spite of this obstacle, they managed to reach Boston in four days.

They intend returning home from Liverpool, sailing May 23.

Daverkosen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Daverkosen of 461 South Jackson street.

Duller makes his home with his mother, Mrs. William H. White, 218 South Main street.

STEAM PIPES HIGHER IN PRICE

Local Contractors Have Been Notified Of a Haise.

Building contractors here have been notified of a 25 per cent. advance in the price of all sizes of steam pipe.

In the past five months there has been an increase of 100 per cent. in this line of manufactured goods, an advance that few seemed to have foreseen. Few of the contractors laid in supplies of pipe, expecting no further advance.

The increase in steampipe prices, is largely due to foreign shipments. About half the product of the country is sold for export business to South Africa, Australia, Germany and England. The advance is in line with the rise in prices being made in all iron products.

SUBSTITUTE FOR POTATO BUG

New Species of Insect Comes to Destroy Tuber Plants

Cold weather killed all the red and black potato bugs last winter. Potato growers have been very much pleased in consequence while druggists have found Paris green in very slow demand.

But it is not all smooth sailing. A new bug has appeared—a gray bug about half an inch long. It destroys potatoes just the way the little red and black bugs did, only being larger it destroys them much faster. Fourth ward potato patches show the effect of the new pest very plainly and bugs are beginning to appear here and there all over town.

GAVE GOOD PERFORMANCE

Sneller and Kennedy's Show Pleased All Last Night.

At the corner of Milwaukee avenue and Clarence street last evening Sneller and Kennedy's circus, a reproduction of the battle of Manila, held forth before a good sized audience. The show through out was most entertaining and was well worth the price of admission.

The Zartnic family from Germany in bronze-statuary acts were alone worth the price.

The horizontal work of Ellet and Stiner was excellent and brought forth hearty applause.

At the close the company gave a realistic reproduction of the battle of Manila, using huge models for battleships and an immense amount of fire works, acrobats, bar and trapeze performers gave a fine exhibition in connection with the spectacle, making a splendid evening's entertainment.

They show again this evening.

We will not carry perishable goods over Sunday; all fruits and vegetables of this class unsold at 8 o'clock tonight goes at clean-up prices. Sanborn.

Today At Crystal Springs Park and Was Well Attended

At Crystal Springs park today members of the Junior, Sophomore and Freshman class of the Janesville High school held a joint picnic.

At 10 o'clock the first boat left well filled with picnickers, who seemed to be well supplied with baskets that were loaded down with good things to eat.

At noon dinner was served and proved a treat in itself.

Dancing and games took place during the afternoon and at 6 o'clock supper was in order.

The picnic proved a most enjoyable affair and was one long to be remembered.

INJURED JUMPING FROM TRAIN

Mrs. W. S. Haight, of Johnstown, Sustains Severe Injury.

Mrs. W. S. Haight, of Johnstown, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon at Darien.

Mrs. Haight was assisting some friends on the train and before she realized her position the train started. She endeavored to have the train stop, but her efforts proved of no avail. From the rear platform she jumped to the ground, and in the fall the small bone of one of her ankles was broken.

Dr. Woods, of this city, was summoned and set the fracture, and at present Mrs. Haight is resting quite easily.

WITH THE CAMERA.

A WORKING EQUIPMENT FOR A FIRST ATTEMPT THIS SUMMER.

Fascinations of Amateur Photography—The Most Satisfactory Camera For General Use—Never Buy a Cheap Lens—The Tripod.

One of the most remarkable features of modern photography is the great interest and enthusiasm which it has evoked among persons not otherwise possessed of pronounced artistic inclinations—in other words, among "the people." Whether this is due to the fascination attendant upon "making a picture" of some admired object or to the marvelously small figure at which a camera may now be purchased, or to these two items coupled together is not especially material.

Generally speaking, the path of the amateur photographer is by no means an easy one to tread. In spite of its palpable allurements, it would be difficult to name a pursuit more hampered with obstacles, more involved in uncertainties. Indeed if the experimenter does not possess a practically exhaustless stock of patience and persistence it is a foregone conclusion from the beginning that he will sooner or later throw up the whole thing in utter disgust. Next to clear headedness and the artistic instinct, stick-at-it-iveness is the one quality of which the would be photographer stands most urgently in need.

The all important question of outfit is naturally the amateur photographer's first consideration—and one that he finds not a little perplexing. A small hand camera, with a complete outfit, can now be purchased for the insignificant sum of $2.50, and, though this will scarcely afford the results desired by the beginner of exalted ambitions, it may nevertheless be made the source of no small amount of gratification. Five dollars, however, will procure a better one, $10 a better one still, and so on through all the styles and grades. For "snap shooting" purposes the hand camera—the "detective," as it is technically called—is at once the most convenient and the most easily managed. The most satisfactory camera for general use, however, is one of the folding variety, adjusted for use on a tripod and at once light of weight, compact of form and solid of construction.

Even more important than the camera is the lens, whose quality should be of the best. A cheap camera may prove serviceable; a cheap lens—never! Wherefore it is advisable, in most instances, to purchase a good lens separate, having it fitted to the camera. Making a conservative estimate it may be said that a very good lens for "all around" work—that is, landscape, groups, etc.—can be procured for a trifle under $5; though the scale of prices—even for lenses designed for use with ordinary cameras, producing 4 by 5 photographs—runs up to more than ten times that sum. Of course, such a lens—a "single view" lens, as it is listed in the catalogue—will not do quite everything in the line of picture taking. Interior work requires a "wide angle" lens, while for instantaneous photographs a "rapid rectilinear" lens is in order.

Another part of the photographic outfit that is usually purchased separately is the tripod. Like the camera, it should be sufficiently light of weight to be easily carried, yet strong enough to bear constant usage, and it should also be capable of easy adjustment to any irregularity of the earth's surface, thus insuring for the camera an absolutely firm and level position. Still another important essential is that it be readily and compactly folded for convenient carrying in the hand. The price of this useful implement is quite moderate, a very good specimen being procurable for $2.25, while the best on the market does not cost more than $5.

Armed with the working equipment herein mentioned, together with plates, developing and printing materials, trays, etc., all of which come with the camera, the prospective photographer is practically ready for his first attempt, says The Designer, from whose series, "Half Hours With a Camera," the foregoing items and illustrations are gleaned.

Bows All Over One's Frock.

A noteworthy feature of the moment is the eruption of bows all over one's frock. They are dabbed up and down the skirt, they finish off waistband and fichu, they break forth on the shoulder. So far so good, but a bow, except it appears to fasten or finish off anything, is out of place. It should always have a raison d'être.

ON THE SUMMER OUTING.

Some Luxuries and Necessities For Camp and Shore.

To go out of town for the sake of rest, quiet and comfort resolves itself into a burlesque if the would be sojourner goes without suitable and intelligent preparations. There are a few localities where mosquitoes are not found, but they are rare indeed, and to visit unknown and untried regions without a few pieces of mosquito netting or a ready made canopy among the luggage is, as a rule, to invite the attention of these annoying insects. Good quality ready made canopies, complete, may be had. They close like an umbrella and may be carried with fishing rods, canes and like articles in a package with a shawl strap or in a large sized Saratoga trunk.

Ordinary mosquito netting costs 40 cents to 80 cents per piece, and some grades may be sent by mail. It is therefore the sheerest folly to endure the bites of hungry mosquitoes when a few strips of hickory from the nearest sapling, with a little ingenuity and wrapping twine, will make a canopy that will be proof against such marauders.

A good hammock is a luxury of the most approved sort for the tourist who has but little chance for carrying luggage. For persons of robust health there is little danger of injury or exposure from sleeping in the open air and a hammock is the most luxurious of beds if properly managed. There are always blankets that can be folded and laid on the cords and spreading sticks can be cut on short notice if it is not convenient to carry them. For children or ladies who are delicate or do not like to sleep upon the ground while camping out, there may be the most comfortable provision made with but little trouble.

For ordinary suburban, seashore and piazza use the arranging of a hammock is a very simple affair. Very strong hooks should be driven into some portion of the woodwork if a piazza is chosen. In the orchard the hammock may be fastened to the trees, but care should be taken that the knots are securely tied. Many serious accidents have resulted from insecure fastenings. Good hammocks cost all the way from $1 to $4 and come in plain white and various colors. The sort known as the Mexican hammock is among the most durable of all hammocks.

Naturally Enough.

"I gave that poor man $1 a few days ago, and told him to come around and let me know how he got along." "Oh, that was good of you! He was your bread cast upon the waters." "I suppose he was. Anyhow, he came back 'soaked.'"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Maid and the Miracle

Miss Lucy Tucker, the daughter of a prominent farmer of Versailles, Ind., was the victim of nervous prostration. Most of the time she was confined to bed, and was on the verge of St. Vitus' dance. It was a pitiful case which medical science failed to conquer. Finally a doctor prescribed Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Her father said:

"We began giving the pills at once, and the next day we could see a change for the better in her. We gave her one pill after each meal until she was entirely well. She has not been sick a day since. We think the cure almost miraculous."

Feeding a Distant Army. How We Send Fresh Meat to Our Philippine Troops.

By Captain T. B. Francis.

The problem of feeding 20,000 soldiers who are 10,000 miles away from home is one which has been given serious attention by our military authorities. After several months spent in experimenting and preparation a satisfactory solution has been reached. The United States commissary department is now equipped with the necessary arrangement to furnish our army in the Philippines with just as good food as if the regiments were scattered about at the various home army posts.

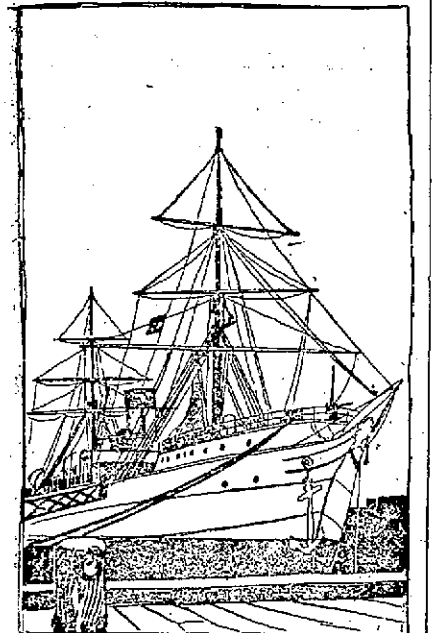

The other day a vessel left for Manila with 2,000,000 pounds of fresh meat in her hold. This was the refrigerator ship Glacier, which has recently been acquired for this purpose. It is the largest shipment of fresh meat ever made to such a distant port. When it reaches Manila, there will be joy in the ranks of regulars and volunteers. Fresh meat is something for which our soldiers, and our sailors as well, have been longing during the Philippine campaign.

While the Glacier was loading at the dock in Brooklyn recently one of her officers on the Buffalo, lying near by, received a letter from a brother officer in Manila. "I'd give a fortune for a prime rib roast," said the faraway writer.

So one of the last things which went into the frigid hold of the Glacier was a big, juicy cut of beef, frozen as hard as a rock and bearing a tag which read:

FOR BILL MAHONEY.
A PIANO IS FOLLOWING.

The Glacier really belongs to the navy, but she has been temporarily loaned to the commissary department of the army for the present emergency. She was originally built to carry fresh mutton from Australia to England. Although a fine looking craft with good lines, she is really a huge floating icebox. Beneath the white paint of her hull are great cold storage rooms running her entire length on several decks. By means of the ammonia process, the same as used in breweries, these decks are kept at a temperature far below the freezing point. The pipes which line ceilings and floors are covered with hoar frost, and when you go down into her hold you need an overcoat.

REFRIGERATOR SHIP GLACIER.
[From a photograph taken just before she sailed for the Philippines.]

Even while sailing through the tropic heat of the Suez canal the "tween decks of the Glacier will be just as cool as when she started. For thousands of miles her course will be through a region where she will carry with her the only refuge from sweltering heat to be found within a week's journey.

To make sure that the cargo will reach Manila in good condition the entire 2,000,000 pounds of meat was first submitted to a temperature of 15 degrees for six days. All the loading was done at night. The process was interesting.

A float with a number of refrigerator cars, reduced to the lowest possible temperature by being packed with ice and salt, was moored alongside the refrigerating storehouse. The cars on the float having been all filled, it was quickly ferried over to the navy yard, and hauled up alongside the Glacier.

Then one at a time the cars were opened and the huge cranes set to work lifting the quarters of beef and lowering them into the hold, where they were carefully packed away in the freezing atmosphere. Night after night this process was repeated, 350,000 pounds of beef being packed away each night. By the use of the refrigerator cars for transporting across the river not one of the quarters of beef was exposed to the air for more than ten minutes.

From seven to eight days were consumed in loading the beef, all the rest of the cargo having been put on board first; then the hatches were closed airtight, and the Glacier steamed away to the hungry American fighting men on the other side of the world.

A tremendous refrigerator storehouse is now being completed on the wharf at Manila for receiving the cargo of frozen beef. It will not be exposed to the tropical heat of the Philippines for many minutes—only long enough to put it into the refrigerated rooms.

THE QUEEN'S GILLIE.

Highlander Who Is Victoria's Personal Attendant.

No American would consider it an honor to be anybody's gillie. In the highlands of Scotland the word has a different meaning. With us the word gillie is a synonym for chump. In Scotland it means either a boy or a man servant. Queen Victoria has a gillie. He is a very imposing looking personage. His name is Rankin.

Wherever the queen goes Mr. Rankin goes too. He is her personal attendant, and fills the place so long occupied by the much lamented John Brown. Like a true Scot, Mr. Rankin wears the kilt and sporran. He has discarded the tartan, however, for an ordinary sack coat. The combination is somewhat incongruous.

As a concession to modern prudery Mr. Rankin's skirts are unco' long, and so are his stockings, but in spite of both extremes an inch or two of bare knees show. This peculiar costume, in addition to his brawny height, make him the most conspicuous of Victoria's attendants. He attracts even more notice than her two East Indian servants.

A Fighting Editor.

"The editor of this paper," says the Chariton (Mo.) Courier, "after paying his fines resulting from an altercation in Mayor L. N. Dempsey's court last Monday, still has the town in debt to him, $8.20, and unless we can realize on that soon we may be compelled to take it out in pugilistic punches. If we have any enemies who would like to be punched $8.20 worth, we may conclude to accommodate them if they first give us an opportunity to recover from the effects of the slugging contest to which we were a party last Monday."

A Device Worth Considering.
A revolving cupboard is a convenience described and illustrated in the Ohio Farmer. This very handy device is constructed between the kitchen and dining room. An aperture like a doorway is cut through the wall with frame and casing 32 inches wide and 5 feet high, except that the cupboard does not reach within one foot of the floor.

A post the proper length, made from 2 inch material, occupies the center on which the shelves and partition boards are fastened or built. The partitions are made from two boards 16 inches wide, screwed to one side of the post and reach to the frame with a close fit, so as to turn without friction. The shelves are also revolving cupboards, made of 16 inch boards cut in half circles and placed on either side of the partition at such distances apart as to suit the dishes and other ware to be used on them. After fastening on the shelves they will need supporting in front on both sides, with round or turned posts, set in flush with the edges of the shelves, so as to pass the frame when revolving. To make the cupboard revolve easily, a pivot should be driven into the bottom of post and then filed to a neat roundness within three-fourths inch of base of post and a socket made by drilling a hole a little larger than the pivot into an iron plate one-half inch. The top spud only needs a plate with hole in it. The cupboard revolves when turned by hand. This arrangement does away with carrying dishes or courses for the table. While the first course is being eaten the cook fills the opposite side in kitchen, then the soiled dishes from the first are placed on the shelves and the cupboard turned with the next course into dining room.

Liquor on Ships of War.
The law prohibits the sale of liquor upon ships of war. Tobacco is not a part of the supplies issued to the sailors, but a supply is carried upon all the war vessels for sale to them. No alcoholic drinks were served our soldiers stationed outside the limits of the United States during the war with Spain. In some of the large camps, notably at Chickamauga, spirituous and malt liquors were sold. It may be broadly stated that liquor was sold at all the camps in this country where its sale was not prohibited by the local laws. Tobacco is a part of the army ration, furnished by the government.

BLUE AND WHITE DOTTED BATISTE GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR.

Among the most beautiful of summer fabrics is batiste, which this year emulates silk in its variety of pretty color combinations. A very pretty treatment of this material is shown in a blue and white gown, a pattern of which accompanies the current number of the bazar, where the design originally appeared. The outer bodice is in three parts; a plain French back, shield front, and the left side front, over which the shield laps. The gown may be made upon a blue lawn or taffeta foundation. The patterns for yoke and high collar are part of the present costume. The front of the batiste waist is slightly gathered at the shoulders, the fullness being drawn in at the waist on each side of the center front, and the fastening is concealed between the gathers at the shoulder and waist-line. The sleeves are tight-fitting with flaring cuffs and epaulettes. The foundation skirt is of a tight sheath variety, and is perforated to indicate the position of the ruffles. The peplum has a slight fullness in the center of the back, which may be distributed in gathers or brought into inward-turning pleats. The garment is absolutely plain over the hips, but flared at the bottom, as do the two ruffles over which it is draped. The peplum and ruffles come well forward at the sides, and a panel front is fitted over them. A line of perforations on foundation lining will indicate the termination of the drapery and ruffles at the side, and the position for placing the front panel. If desired, the opening of the skirt may be placed at the left side of the panel, but in the original model it occurs at the back. This design will be found an effective one for foulards, crepes, India silks, cashmeres, or any soft and at the same time pliant material. In the batiste model the panel and collar are outlined with white Renaissance lace, but any preferred trimming, such as gathered ribbon, passementerie, or ruchings of the same material, will make effective trimming.

To make this costume 13 yards of batiste 32 inches wide will be required, also three yards of lawn for the foundation skirt and waist. Where silk is desired for the foundation skirt, 7 yards 22 inches wide will be sufficient.

Hats built up with plumes, blossoms and yards of tulle, gauze or chiffon, gracefully draped gowns and the old time fichus show the tendency to make the coming season one of extreme picturesqueness in dress. The pretty gowns already prepared for garden parties and for afternoon toilets are marked by a most alluring daintiness. Lace is rampant—there is no other word for it—beautiful lace, which we prize when we have it and covet when the eye lights upon it, here, there and everywhere, on all sorts and conditions of women. Dame Fashion evidently looks forward only to warmth and sunshine through the summer days for airy muslins and diaphanous fabrics of every description are the vogue. Gauzes, chiffons, crapes and kindred stuffs have acquired an unwonted hold upon popular favor.

The best French gowns no longer exaggerate the eelskin skirt. Smart evening or visiting skirts are so cut that while they fit closely to the knees they lie limply round the feet in careless flutes, and draperies equally limp fall to some length above. The pointed tunic is undoubtedly graceful, and is suitable over a long or a short skirt. Gauze, canvas, muslin and grenadine and the endless soft fabrics of less transparent texture, as voile, delaine and non's veiling, will be made in this limp, trailing fashion, and for muslins and washable fabrics deep flounces are revived, these set on a sheathlike top and profusely trimmed with braid and lace.

Black and white represents one of the stylish color combinations for the summer. The beautiful garden party or dressy toilet for watering place or fashionable country resort, annealing in match, trim the bottom of the skirt. The sleeves are semilong with small circular tucks at the top and lace edged frill at the elbow. The bertha is of white guipure lace and the neck and waist bands of blue silk, like the oval yoke which radiates in gathers. White silk muslin ruffles, tufts of roses and two black Amazon feathers ornament the blue straw toque.

One of the most sensible fancies of the season is that for foulard gowns, which stand wear, are always ready and suitable for many and various occasions. A charming gown in periwinkle and white spotted foulard, made with graduated flounces and fastened on left side in princess style, is shown in the second cut. The other figure represents the fashionable voile in cream color over salmon pink silk, with white silk cord embroidery and gauze trimming. The sleeves are plaited and a smart bow of salmon silk finishes the corsage. The skirt is in the tunic shade, with three flounces.

FOULARD AND VOILE GOWNS.

Sunbonnets of the Season.

In pretty contrast with all the extreme and extravagant productions in hats are the dainty sunbonnets which have blossomed out again in greater variety than last season. Certainly coquetry has a new weapon in these simple head coverings, which if well chosen and cleverly manipulated can be made to cast such a pretty shadow over the eyes. They are made of organdie and dimity in plain colors or flowered patterns and finished with hemmed and pinked ruches or frills and are altogether fetching when the face inside is young and pretty, says the New York Sun.

Every Day a Little.

Does the time ever come, some one asks with some righteous petulance, when the replenishing of linen and the buying of books and the cleaning of closets and other preliminaries to comfort accomplished, the comfort untrammelled really begins? Is there no point at which the stocking up and the looking over and the repairs cease? And the answer is, Not that any living housekeeper knows or has ever heard of. Like the wear and tear of the system, and of everything that uses itself up as it goes along, the domestic machinery needs constant feeding.

The logical programme to be drawn up from such a state of matters is, therefore, says The House Beautiful, one of incessant watchfulness, lest the arrears grow too big to be caught up with easily. A little every day is not half so wearing nor half so expensive as a great "hurrab, boys," ronting out of all that makes home comfortable. Many persons, tired of the anathemas of the men of the family when cleaning drives them out of doors every spring and autumn, have given up the revolutionary tactics they learned of the Puritans, who thought misery necessary to salvation, and clean a little all the time, so as to avoid a deluge of soap suds twice a year. It stands to reason that if a daily scrubbing is administered there will not be the need of a yearly turning out to be scrubbed. But it is very hard to convince the old fashioned of this fact, self evident though it be.

Artistic Matting.

The old fashioned matting users, accustomed to the prim, set patterns which were the only ones come-at-able even a few years ago, would open their eyes at the graceful designs and dainty colorings of straw matting as it is found today. A unique design has moderate sized clover leaves in maroon color sprinkled here and there over a pale straw colored groundwork. Another has a vivid green, velvet looking spot distinguishing a dull green background. A novel pattern has leaves in autumn tints scattered over a delicate groundwork in which the slightest suspicion of blue is introduced. Some people cling to the old fashioned red and white plaids and all over white and green and white checks that the Chinese make, and really they give entire satisfaction, being unpretentious and dorable.

Soft and Musical.

The Turkish language is said by scholars to be the softest and most musical language of modern times, being better adapted to the purpose of musical notation and recitation than even the Italian.—London Tit-Bits.

Many Women Will Meet

When the International Council Opens in London, June 26.

By Annette Crawford.

Representatives of more than 1,000,000 women will meet in Westminster hall, London, on June 26. The occasion is the third convention of the International Council of Women. American women will take a prominent part in the affair, for they comprise more than half the whole number represented.

The first gathering of this character was called by American women in Washington in 1888 and the second at the World's fair in Chicago. The latter, however, held only one short session, giving way to the world's congress of representative women.

The International Council is a federation of national councils or unions of women formed in various countries for the promotion of unity and mutual understanding between all associations working in the common welfare of humanity.

The councils are called once in five years and are designed to provide a means of communication between women's organizations in all countries and to furnish the opportunity for conference upon questions relating to the welfare of the family and the commonwealth.

The council is not organized in the interest of any special propaganda and claims no power over its members beyond that of suggestion and sympathy. Its representatives come from the United States, England, Canada, Germany, Sweden, Ireland, New Zealand, New South Wales, Finland and Italy, while France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Switzerland are now organizing for representation, each national council in these several countries being socially represented by their president and two delegates.

The Chinese ambassador to England has undertaken the appointment of a Chinese woman as a delegate, and Japan may be represented also.

Some of the most prominent women in this country will go as representatives of America, the three official delegates being Mrs. Fannie Humphreys Gaffney, president of the National Council of Women; Susan B. Anthony and Rev. Anna Shaw.

MRS. FANNIE HUMPHREYS GAFFNEY.

As the International Council meets only once in five years, the cosmopolitan set of officers elected at Chicago are those now in power with one exception. They are: President, the Countess of Aberdeen, wife of the former governor general of Canada; vice president at large, Mrs. May Wright Sewall of Indianapolis; treasurer, Baroness Alexandra Gripenberg of Helsingfors, Finland; corresponding secretary, Miss Teresa F. Wilson of London, and recording secretary, Mme. Maria Martin of Paris. Miss Wilson is the exception noted, her predecessor having resigned on account of ill health.

Training and training and the training of teachers naturally have the chief attention in the educational section. In the professional section there are a number of suggestive topics, especially agriculture and horticulture. The handicrafts, too, will come in for a rather surprising representation, for the tempting successes of women in jewel making, silk weaving, brasswork and house decorating will be reported upon.

Aside from a design of inducing women to rub ideas together until the sharp corners are smoothed off a bit, one definite work that the council has set out to accomplish is to establish an international bureau of information from which any woman seeking a profession or a trade can learn where the demand is great, where the supply is least and where the best instruction can be had, and, in short, what sort of chance she is likely to get in the line proposed.

Of course, woman's voice is unanimous for international peace, and the coming council will do all it can to give power to the czar's elbow to the end that an international bureau may be established.

A GARDEN PARTY GOWN.

THREE PRAYERS.

An infant in its cradle slept,
And in its sleep it smiled,
And one by one three women knelt
To kiss the fair haired child,
And each thought of the days to be
And breathed a prayer half silently.

One poured her love on many lives,
But knew love's toll and care.
Its burdens off had been to her
A heavy weight to bear.

She stooped and murmured lovingly,
"Not burdened hands, dear child, for thee."

One had not known the burdened hands,
But knew the empty heart.
At life's rich banquet she had sat
An unfed guest apart.

"Oh, not," she whispered tenderly,
"An empty heart, dear child, for thee!"

And one was old; she had known care,
She had known loneliness.
She knew God lends us by no path
His presence cannot bless.

She smiled and murmured trustfully,
"God's will, dear child, God's will for thee!"

OF THE SOIL.

A Vivid Picture of Love and Desertion.

By Ethel Knight.

They were married—heaven knows why, as with so many of them—and went to live on Vance's island, a long, fertile strip in the river, three miles wide. There were no other inhabitants, and the hills on the river banks shut away all sound of outer life. He had been raised in the country, but she was a town lass, and the gas lamps and bustle of the seaport had got into her blood. Perhaps she never loved him; any way she was not happy.

She was an industrious wench. The tiny two roomed cottage he had built was kept scrupulously neat, and she helped him in the fields, when, with her sleeves rolled back from her round, brown arms and a cow's breakfast, as they call the wide straw farmers' hats in New Brunswick, on her dark hair, he thought her a proper woman enough, with her little, strong figure and gleaming eye, but never told her so.

By and by she seldom talked and grew restless on the days when they put off in their rowboat to deliver eggs and butter to the river steamers. He did not notice how eagerly she scanned the dress of the women passengers nor how the captain kept an eye on all her movements.

Fall came, tinting the landscape like a splendid sunset, and the red and yellow trees rustled in the windy sunshine of October days. Then he sprained his ankle and had to bide at his doorstep, while she took the boat and rowed out to the steamer for the trade. She seemed to be gone longer than necessary, he thought. Perhaps she was driving a hard bargain. She was shrewd, and he was lucky to have her. He wished she would live on a bit, though, and not long so much for the town and shops. What did a farmer's wife need in town except a market for her wares? But women were all odd.

He was right in his surmise. She had raised the price of the butter and eggs and brought home a few extra cents. So on the following days, when she delayed her return several minutes, he was not impatient. But when the next time for the steamer to pass came and the minutes lengthened into quarters, then hours, he grew disturbed and hobbled to the beach. She pulled a good, strong oar for a town lass, but her father was a sailor, so it came natural for her to manage a boat. The river was a treacherous flow of water, but her boat was easy to pull, and she had not far to go.

It was strange he could not see her. Perhaps she had gone around to the sand beach. The rowan trees were there, and she had a fancy for decking up the house with them. He thought it somewhat cruel as well as profitless to rob the birds of their winter food, but she laughed at that.

He would best go home, he thought, and put the potatoes on for dinner. It was the lass' work, but she had gone to do his, so turn about was fair. He was so honest! At the close of day still there was no sign of her, and he tried again to walk to the shore, but the injured ankle would not stand the strain, and he was forced to sit and wait.

Night came, but she did not return. On his hands and knees he crawled to the beach and called her name loudly, with a harsh breaking in his voice. The cries echoed back mockingly. The moon went down behind the hills and left him groping in the dusky starlight. His hands were torn and his knees bruised with the jagged stones as he dragged himself, but he took no heed, calling out for the woman whom for the first time he realized in a dumb, heavy way he loved.

At dawn, peering out eagerly, he saw his boat ashore some distance up the island. His heart beats quickened, and something warm and tender flashed through him. How he had missed her! Poor lass! Perhaps she, too, missed her home folk. Well, the work was nearly done, and frost would soon bind the river, and then he would drive her to the town and take her to the fair; yes, and buy her a warm, red hood and ribbons. He laughed out loud as he dragged himself to the house, thinking of her pleasure. She must have returned some time back. The boat was well up on the beach where hours ago had been the tide. She was home and doubtless wondering where he was. She had staid out to give him a bit of a fright and had slipped in when he had gone to search for her, dear lass!

He reached the cottage. The door stood open, staring vacantly at him; the fire was out, and the gusty wind had scattered the light pine ash like powder. She was not there. Doubt grew in his heart as slowly he dragged himself back to the shore—to the boat. Was she dead? A bitterness gnawed him. Hungrily he gazed at the waves which had taken her from him. He mumbled like an old man robbed, as tears splashed his face.

At last he reached the boat. In the bottom was a piece of cedar chip tied to her handkerchief. Leaping at it fiercely, he grasped it with shaking hand. Then he rolled up his eyes, his fingers fumbling with the knot, his lips drawn white. Scrawled on the chip with a pencil was a message: "I've gone for good. You were kind, but I could not abide you or the country. I've gone with one as will take me all over the world."

With his mouth working tensely he started to drag himself back. His brain was flying high up and down again. Darting lights played before his eyes. The whirling ground leaped away from him. Crawling on, he reached the door, where, down on all fours, like a dog, he flung up his head and looked around the rooms wildly. Everything in them spoke with a trumpet voice of her. He let his head fall on the sill. Then a groan came heavily from his lips, and he was calm.

The next week a new captain came on the river steamer.

The birds flying across the river on their way to the south saw a woman, dressed gaudily and in vulgar fashion, making her way from the landing to the little house on Vance's island. At the door a gaunt man watched her. With a dazed stumbling he walked forth a little way to meet her.

"I have come back after these years," she said, looking up to the little home, which, small and poor as it was, seemed to hold out hope of peace to her. But he said nothing, only staring at her with eyes in which burned a faint spark. Once he shivered at the croaking notes in her voice.

Into the house she followed him doggedly. She picked up her duties where she had left them years before, touching a chair here and moving something there. She took a broom and fell to sweeping feverishly, until she flung it down contemptuously and sank into a chair with a gasp. He had watched her silently with slow burning eyes.

"Why don't you speak?" she cried. Her rising voice was hard and cracking. There was a taunt on her lips. Her hands on her hips conveyed an insolence of boldness.

"I have come back to you in kindness," she said, her tones going higher and her voice growing more rasping. "I know the worth of a woman like me. When my captain died, I could have had many a fair chance, but I thought of you, and somehow I wanted to come here. Aren't you going to make up?" she cried angrily.

God, what a difference in those years! His lips pressed together sternly.

"Why don't you speak?" she screamed. "How dare you treat me like—like—"

She paused and then laughed with her brazen notes. But the dancing lights were in his brain again and before his eyes and around him a boiling flame that roared. The room was whirling. He saw it all streaked and spangled with fierce color—the floor, the chairs, the flat stove, the utensils of tin, and among them her face, the lips leering, the eyes staring. Staggering to his feet, he groped with his arms. His hands clutched at something soft and warm that yielded under his contracting fingers. They closed tightly, gripping hard to stop the whirling of the earth. The flame shot up madly, and, blinded in the dark, he fell, lying stretched on the floor.

Years later, the upper end of the island settled, pity still endured among the people for the lonely man who lived on the lower end. They told strangers touching there of the young wife whom he had never seen from the day she ran away with the captain of the river steamer and he was left to his solitude. No one knew the whole until a young farmer went to ask aid of the old man at the harvesting. No response coming to his knocks, he lifted the latch and entered. The old man was half kneeling against a chair, his dead eyes thrust out in their sockets. Before him, where the planks of the floor were torn up, were lying the bones and skull of a woman.—New York Press.

Sculpture.

If it were to be considered which branch of the fine arts is the most useful to man, it would probably be found that he could most easily dispense with sculpture and especially that branch of the art which portrays human and animal figures. It is not too much to say that, saving perhaps a score of masterpieces, every human and equestrian statue in the world might be destroyed at a very small cost to the aesthetic sentiments of humanity. Sculpture lacks color, warmth and life. It is a luxury of the rich as far as the adornment of the home is concerned, and its public examples rarely afford satisfaction to any but the amateur. It has, therefore, very little interest for the vast majority of mankind. The idols of idolatrous peoples must be excepted, but here the interest is not artistic, but religious. In the extended sense of the term sculpture could be less easily dispensed with, because it would mean the abolition of all adornment in architecture, and to a highly civilized people this would be intolerable.—Exchange.

DRESS FOR GIRLS.

Simple but Picturesque Cycling and Seaside Frocks.

Now is the time upon us when we may expect summer days, and the outfit for girls is a thing to be seriously considered if it has not already been provided. As the average healthy child partakes of as many athletic sports and spends her summers much as do her mother and sisters, it is only right that, like them, she should be fittingly attired.

Of course so many holidays are spent by the sea, on river or on lake that a pretty yachting or boating dress is almost a necessity. Then, too, a neat wheeling costume goes almost without saying. The two designs given may therefore supply a popular need, the more so because they are quite simple in design and do not present many difficulties to the home dressmaker.

One design, which gives a suggestion for a simple, smart little yachting frock, is carried out in the ever favorite combination of scarlet and white and might be worn suitably by a girl between 10 and 14. The skirt is in scarlet serge, and this is chosen of a fine make; the pattern is a slightly gored one, with the fullness graduated all the way round, the back being arranged in close gathers. For trimming narrow white woolen braid is employed, about a quarter of an inch in width, and this is laid on flatly in ten rows, with the space of the braid itself between each row. The vest might be replaced by a white one, if liked, for a change. For headgear a scarlet fisherman's cap would be the best or a little white sailor with a red ribbon.

The second sketch shows a useful and practical cycling costume for a girl a little older. It is carried out in a stone gray beige with a little relief in white. The slight fullness of the skirt is arranged in two flat plaits at the back. Three inches above the skirt edge is placed a narrow crossway band of white cloth.

The bodice is made with slightly gathered backs and fronts. A box plait of white conceals the fastenings in front, and this is decorated with small, round gilt buttons arranged in sets of three, as may be seen by the sketch. The turnover collar and cuffs to the plain coat sleeves are in white, while a white waistband fastened with silver buckles encircles the waist. For headgear may be suggested a white Tam O'Shanter trimmed with a twist of ribbon and white quills.

ABOUT STRAWBERRIES.

Some Tempting Ways to Eat the Luscious Fruit of June.

"How sincerely with every returning June we pity the unfortunate among our friends who cannot eat strawberries. What can there be about so luscious a fruit or about some constitutions to make eating strawberries like coming in contact with poison ivy? One gentleman of our acquaintance bravely endures his first plate of strawberries, endures the ill effects, and when the exzema-like affliction has run its course and faded, goes on feasting off strawberries with the rest of us, finding that, once inoculated, strawberries agree with him perfectly." Whether others in his plight might safely follow his example is a question which a writer in Good Housekeeping, having stated the foregoing case, leaves each one to decide for himself. But there can be no question about following the same writer's hints on how to eat the luscious fruit:

To those who know the strawberry in its best estate it seems indisputable that strawberries dead, ripe and eaten from the vines and strawberries ice cold and served with merely sugar and an abundance of cream are the only strawberries treated with the respect deserved. But who has not helped devour even strawberry pie and found it not bad either, if one must have pie? And where is the household in which at least one "pie eater" is not to be found, true to the traditions of his ancestors, in spite of reformers and would be benefactors and the scorn of those who insist that his pie is properly but a tart?

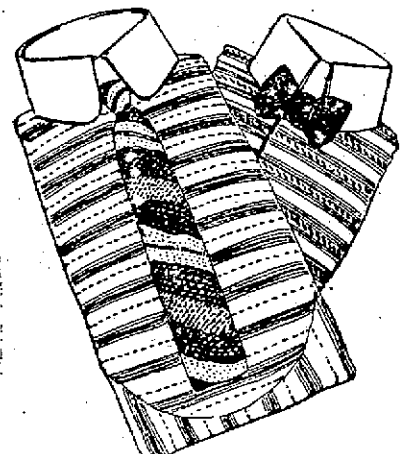

Conards and meringues are less ruinous to the strawberry than concoctions in which the fruit must be cooked. But many consider these allowable merely for the sake of variety, thinking that the housekeeper who buys a pint of cream and a fresh loaf provides a better dessert than she who attempts more elaborate serving.

Against the time honored strawberry shortcake not a word shall be said. Let its foundation be of the lightest, tenderest, quick biscuit sort and not of the sweetened cake order. Let the berries be hulled and sliced with the handle of a thin old silver spoon and well coated with sugar an hour or two before needed to place in the hot, buttered cakes. Let a generous cream, jug be passed with the dessert, and, as an act of precaution, let a light dinner precede it.

All sorts of ices, sherbets and jellies receive a commendable flavor from the use of strawberry juice. To make a sherbet wash a quart of berries, sprinkle over them a pint of sugar, add the juice of a lemon and a half pint of water in which has been dissolved a tablespoonful of gelatin. Freeze as for ice cream.

Styles in Shirts.

Among smart shirts for men, some of which it illustrates, Vogue mentions patterns of lilac with pink, white and red alternate stripes, cinnamon pink with broad blue and white alternate stripes, and a very dark bottle green with pink stripes.

All these shirtings are of the same fabrics, pure woven linens, madras cloths, prints and satin surdus.

The modishly made shirt shows a round bosom with two buttonholes and an all round white collar, with rounded points about two and a half inches high. The cuffs are narrow. Shirts with stripes running across the bosom are also much in favor. When the stripes run across, they are very wide, and only two colors or two shades are used.

Figured stripes with Roman and satin effects run lengthwise. Very smart are shirts of blue, lilac or pink with white stripes. In all these shirts the stripes run around the cuffs.

Many of the new, narrow cuffs are square cornered.

For Tired and Tender Feet.

There is nothing more strengthening to the feet than salt. But bathing the feet in salt and water, however, is not enough. Put about a quart of warm (not hot) water in a basin and add a tablespoonful of salt. Having first thoroughly washed the feet with warm water and soap, place them in the salt bath for 15 or 20 minutes, then wipe dry. An occasional treatment of this kind is very restful, but continued, persistently once a week at least, for several months, it will be found that the feet are not only rested, but strengthened, says The Ladies' World.

Rose Leaf Preserves.

This is said to be the way to make rose leaf preserves, those confections which are served in Turkish harems: Take a jar of which the mouth and bottom are the same size (like a Dundee marmalade jar), and in the bottom sprinkle a layer of crystallized sugar. Over that place a layer of rose leaves, then alternate with sugar till the jar is filled. Be sure that sugar is the top layer. Paste two thicknesses of paper over the top and set in a cool dark place till fall. It is then fit to turn out and serve, and nothing can be more delightful for the eye or palate.

INQUISITORIAL

Methods of Collecting Taxes Instituted by an Official of San Francisco.

They are going to collect the tax, the whole tax, and nothing less than the tax out in California. It seems that there have resided in the city of up and down many of that ubiquitous class of citizens who believe it cheaper to lie than to pay taxes. Salaries, it is rumored, were falling behind; his honor needed cupids in his office. The methods adopted by the new assessor, elected on a reform platform of his own making, whose name, curiously enough, is Dodge, savors pungently of the ancient inquisition. The way the thing has been done in most cities is for the deputy collector to call and leave a blank. This receiving no attention beyond a few minor items, such as "Steinway piano, twenty-five dollars," "household goods, furniture, chattels, etc., one hundred dollars," the deputy humbly pockets what he knows to be a lie and goes his way; the result being that the very signer of such a libel is obliged for another year to stumble over the pavements he has since childhood decried, and stand up for more months in the street cars, whose overloaded condition he has in print so violently execrated. These unmethods are decried by Dodge archaic. The new way is to force one's way into a house and estimate the value of the goods from the standpoint of an outsider. The procedure is naturally meeting with much opposition, even by those who voted for reform and Mr. Dodge. The latter gentleman, however, is seemingly careless of a re-election and pursues the even tenor of his way all undisturbed. The constitutionality of the case is being contested in the San Francisco courts.

GREAT NATION

The Jews of the World Might Constitute.

Three million Jews live in Russia, where they are shut up in the western provinces and villainously treated. If he ventures to live outside the Jewish pale in Russia a Hebrew has to carry on some humble trade, and the richest banker in Odessa, if any Russian has a grudge against him, may be compelled to work as a cobbler on pain of banishment. Naturally the Jews retaliate, and delight in getting Russian officials and nobles under their power with loans of money. One million five hundred thousand Jews live in the Austrian empire, where they are persecuted. The present mayor and corporation of Vienna were elected for the express purpose of bullying the Jewish community. France has 80,000 Jews, Roumania has 100,000 Jews, Germany 700,000, Holland 80,000, and Italy 50,000. Great Britain has 80,000, including many of our most notable and popular public men. Europe has 6,000,000 Jews, America 350,000, Africa 500,000, Asia 250,000, and Australasia 20,000. So altogether there are 7,120,000 of this nation, which is pretty fair, considering that 3,000 years ago they only numbered about 3,000,000, and the whole civilized world has been massacring and bullying them ever since. They seem to be by far the most capable race on earth. There is not a single art, industry or science in which they have not excelled.

In Six Weeks.

In Switzerland last summer there were 1,790 hotels, boarding houses, bathing and health resorts to accommodate the traveling public. When one includes about 1,500 smaller hostilities, with accommodations for about 10 persons, there were sleeping accommodations for 140,000 travelers in Switzerland. During the main traveling season, from the middle of July to the end of August, the minimum expenditure of the average summer boarder, with his children and servants, is placed at the low sum of 5 francs. Nevertheless this means a daily income to the innkeepers of 650,000 francs. Making allowance for favorable traveling weather, these estimates mean an income to the hotel keepers during a month and a half of summer of 23,000,000 francs. In Luzerne alone there are 52 first-class hotels.

Secret of Longevity.

In a paper on longevity, printed in the Lancet, Dr. Almlee Hollis comes to the conclusions: (1) That the primary factor in a long life consists in an inherited durability; the vital machinery is wound up to go for a given period, and but for accidents or in spite of them it will go till the time appointed. (2) That an important part of the primary inheritance is good digestive and nutritive power. (3) That temperance is necessary in the use of the nutritive functions both in eating and in drinking, and in regard to all kinds of food and drink. (4) That an energetic temperament and active habits conduce to longevity.

Memory Stronger in Summer.

Scientists have discovered that the memory is stronger in summer than in winter. Among the worst foes of memory are too much food, too much physical exercise, and, strangely enough, too much education.

Feminine Attributes.

It is a small wonder that the ship is a she to a sailor and his sweetheart. She has a waist, collars, stays, laces, bonnets, ties, ribbons, watches and chains.

Many a Wink.

An English scientist has calculated that a human opens and closes his eyes no fewer than 4,000,000 times per year.

THE BUTTERFLY AND THE ROSE.

In a garden faded, forlorn,
Where the dying autumn sighed,
Was the last white butterfly born.
He sought a rose for his bride.

The last white rose drooped weak
Where the thorn writhed leafless and sad,
He kissed her soft, faded cheek
And bade her love and be glad.

But the grief of the dying year
He drank with her scented breath,
And she knew as his wings drew near
That his kiss was the kiss of death.

CHADD
ETTELMA'S
AMBITION.By William
Zachary
Gladwin.A Shiftless Boy Becomes an Energetic Man.

It was the middle of May, and the belated last lecture of the course was to be given in Wilburg.

"Here, Chadd," said old Essek Harnhaw, holding out a bit of pasteboard. "Here's a ticket for that lecture. All about ambition, that lecture is—the right kind of ambition and how to get it and how to keep it."

The big 17-year-old boy looked indifferently at Mr. Harnhaw, and did not offer to take the ticket.

"Squire Huvick, him they call 'Old Crusty,' you know, he give it to me and told me to give it to the most wuthless and ambitionless fellow in town. I told him I'd give it to you, but I had my doubts about your takin it. Even if you did take it, I said, 'I would be only to tear it to pieces in them big, lazy fingers of yours. Says I, 'Squire, it isn't no sort of use givin it to him.' But the squire he just humped up his shoulders and went off. Some says humpin up your shoulders means one thing, and some says it means another. I took it to mean he didn't think much of you, nohow."

There was a flash of temper in the boy's eyes. He reached out abruptly and took the ticket. He did not tear it in pieces, however. Instead, he slouched off down the street, holding it tightly in his hand. Meddlesome old Essek looked after him. "Now, wouldn't it be a great note if he went to that lecture?" he said to himself. "I would mortify me considerable if he did, after me a-prognosticating to the squire so positive."

The boy lounged on. Suddenly the same idea that was agitating old Essek struck him. Yonder was the church where the lecture was to be given. What if he should go? He paused a moment and looked down at the ticket in his hand. It was almost time for the lecture to begin. Then he raised his head with decision. "The most wuthless and ambitionless fellow in town" will go to the lecture," he said as he entered the church.

"Can't never count on nobody in this world," grumbled old Essek. "I'll feel pretty foolish tomorrow, I guess."

It was not to be wondered at that Chadd had no ambition. From childhood he and his twin sister, Fannie, had lived at the edge of town with a miserly old uncle and aunt who never had made it of any advantage to the children to work. However much they toiled, they had no reward but scant food and patched and frayed clothing. Fannie was still held down to toil by the miserly aunt, but Chadd had rebelled. He did the most necessary of the heaviest work about the place and the remainder of the time idled about the town. "Time I had a resting spell, I guess," he told himself. "If uncle and aunt had hired anybody else to work the way they made me work for nothing 't would have cost 'em something, now, I warrant you."

Nobody knew of these thoughts that filled the boy's mind, for he was no talker. And he was misjudged by those who look only on appearances, as many another person has been.

Chadd had never heard a lecture before, but he had enough instinctive sense of the proprieties to sit up straight in his seat and give the speaker his attention. Soon he was lost to his surroundings. When the lecture was over, with a sigh Chadd arose and passed out of the church. "I'll do it," he said, as he stumbled along the ill paved street that led to his home. "I'll get me an ambition tomorrow. 'Set your mark,' the lecturer said. And tomorrow I'm going to set it."

The next morning he rose and mechanically did the heavy work he had taken for his share and then set off for the town. All day he loafed and loitered, to all appearances the same boy that he had been the day before.

"Lecture didn't do him no good, if he did go," commented old Essek Harnhaw. "Reckon he just went out of spite, anyhow. That was a kind of a dare I give him, and it runs in the Ettelman blood not to take a dare."

And all the time Chadd, with his undisciplined mind, was thinking hard. He had no conceit. No glorious visions of future advancement and splendor for himself dazzled him. He was literally at sea. He could find no ambition. It was late in the afternoon, and he was passing along the street that was lined with the better class of residences, when a door just opposite him opened, and a pretty girl stood there looking out upon him. A moment Chadd gazed, almost open mouthed. Not at the girl before him. Suddenly his ambition had come to him. In the place of the pretty girl he saw his sister. Then the door closed, and Chadd roused himself and walked on with a brisk step. He had set his mark.

Fannie's hands were rough and red from hard work. Fannie's hair was tumbled. Fannie's face was fretful because the poor girl was always overtired. Chadd loved his sister, but for the first time it occurred to him that she needed a resting spell possibly more than he did. "I wish I knew how to help her," he said. "If I should do half her work for her, 't wouldn't do no good. Aunt would only set her more to do."

The next day the way to help his sister opened. The aunt announced her determination to break up housekeeping and go to live in another state with her sister. "You two can look out for yourselves," she said. "Chadd isn't worth his salt, and you've broke enough dishes lately, Fannie, to 'most set me crazy."

"I didn't mean to break 'em, aunt," apologized Fannie humbly. "I'm so tired and nervous I can't seem to hold on to 'em."

"Tired and nervous!" said her aunt. "A young girl like you!"

"Never mind, Fannie," whispered Chadd when the aunt had left the room for a moment. "I'll take care of you."

At which Fannie looked her astonishment.

"I mean it," said Chadd. "I've had my resting spell, and you must have yours."

Next door to their aunt's home was a little empty house of three rooms, surrounded by an acre of ground. It belonged to Squire Huvick. The boy swallowed the resentment that rose in his mind when he remembered that reported shrugging of the squire's shoulders. "I'm going to ask to rent it," he said. "Fannie's my ambition, and Fannie must have a door to stand and look pretty in. The lecturer said, 'Don't let fancied snubs and slights, or even real ones, hinder you from advancing toward your mark.' I'm not going to. I'll go to the squire this morning while aunt's a-packing."

He went, and as he unfolded his plans to Mr. Huvick he was surprised to find a sympathetic listener. "Maybe old Essek didn't know what he was talking about," thought Chadd.

Three days later the aunt left town. "Fannie can get a place to work out over to Chubb's if she wants to," she said. "And I don't feel no call to worry about a great hulking fellow like you, Chadd. Mebbe, when you get hungry enough, you'll go to work."

"Goodby," answered Chadd solemnly.

"My, he give me the creeps the way he said that," mused the aunt, as her train sped on its way. "Kind of made me feel I hadn't done my duty by him, when, so far as I see, I never had none."

"Well, sir, that there lazy Chadd has gone to work in for the squire," proclaimed old Essek a day later. "I wouldn't think the squire would have nothing to do with him."

Another day passed. "Chadd's taking half of his pay in renting that there little old house of the squire's," announced old Essek. "I guess the squire knows what he's about, after all. Hain't had a renter for quite a spell."

The aunt had been gone three months, when the little house began to take on a cozy air. Chadd worked early and late, and Fannie's delight in the tiny house was great. Her face had lost its fretful look. The brother and sister began to study a little together. "Fannie must learn," said Chadd, "and I must learn, too, or I won't know how to be proud of her. Besides, if I learn, I can make more money for her."

A year of earnest toil went by. Chadd was happy. Old Essek was amazed. "Who'd have thought it!" he said. "I do believe he's got ambition."—Forward.

The Old Great Eastern.
On May 1, 1854, Brunel and Scott began the building of the Great Eastern at Millwall, on the north side of the Thames. This immense ship will always be talked about. She is a part of history, and, unlike the majority of ships which are dead and gone, she belongs to time.
Her length between perpendiculars was 680 feet and on the upper deck 692 feet. The breadth of the hull was 83 feet and from paddlebox to paddlebox 118 feet. The depth of this great ship's hull was 60 feet; the weight of the iron contained in her hull, 8,000 tons, and the weight of the whole ship when fully laden, 25,000 tons. Thus loaded she drew 30 feet of water. Further statistics of her construction are curious. Here was a ship held together by no less than 3,000,000 rivets. The plates which formed her were 80,000 in number, and each plate weighed about a third of a ton.

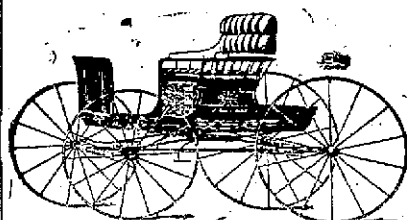

Oldest Rose Tree in the World.
In the crypt of the cathedral of Hildesheim grows a wild rose tree, said to be 1,000 years old, whereas it is the root only, not the stem, which is eight centuries old, according to accurate information derived from original documents. A legend connects this rose tree with a vow made by the founder of the cathedral, Ludwig the Pious, and a document of the eleventh century states that when Bishop Hozilo rebuilt the cathedral, which had been burned down, he inclosed the roots of the rose tree within a vault which still exists, raised upon this vault the crypt and spread out the branches of the rose tree upon the walls. The stem was in 1840 20½ feet high, and the branches covered about 32 feet of the external crypt wall. This is said to be the oldest rose tree in the world.

Or Foot.
"We hardly ever see any congress gaiters now," said the elderly boarder. "That's a fact," said the cheerful idiot, "though I can remember when they might have been seen on every hand."—Indianapolis Journal.

Those Dinners.
"Don't you get tired of being invited out to dinner so much, old man?" "Tired and hungry! I haven't had a square meal in a month!"—Detroit Journal.
